

The 2018 Cambridge Testing Situational Action Theory (SAT) Workshop

23-25 March 2018

The Møller Centre, Churchill College University of Cambridge

The Møller Centre

The 2016 Cambridge Testing SAT workshop

Friday,	23	March
---------	----	-------

13:30-14:25	Lunch
14:30-18:00	Day 1, Afternoon Session Chair: P-O Wikström, University of Cambridge
14:30-14:45	Welcome P-O Wikström, University of Cambridge
14:45-15:45	The Biosocial Basis of SAT
14:45-15:15	The biosocial basis of SAT Dr Kyle Treiber, University of Cambridge The 2016 SAT Workshop
15:15-15:45	Discussants Prof Janet Warren, University of Virginia; Prof Klaus Boers, University of Munster
15:45-16:45	SAT and the Analysis of Economic Crimes
15:45-16:15	Opportunities for insurance fraud: An analysis of the perception-choice process Prof Stefanie Eifler & Dr Debbie Schepers, Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt
16:15-16:45	Risk taking and rule breaking in investment banking: Moral contexts and the application of SAT Rachel Spearing, Serjeants Inn Chambers
16:45-17:05	Coffee break
17:05-18:00	SAT and the Analysis of Extremist Violence
17:05-17:35	A moral-situational action model for extremist violence Prof Janet Warren, University of Virginia
17:35-18:00	Discussant Prof Lieven Pauwels, Ghent University
18:00	Bar opens
19:00	Buffet dinner
	The 2016 SAT Workshop

08:00-09:10	Breakfast
09:15-12:30	Day 2, Morning Session Chair: Dr Kyle Treiber, University of Cambridge
09:15-10:25	SAT and the Analysis of the Criminal Justice System
09:15-09:55	Applying SAT to understanding criminal justice interventions: A comparison based on data from CrimoC and PADS+ Prof. Klaus Boers & Florian Kaiser, University of Munster
09:55-10:25	The interaction between moral context and perceived sanction risk Prof. Helmut Hirtenlehner, Johannes Kepler Universität Linz Heinz Leitgöb, Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt Sonja Schulz, GESIS Leibnitz Institute for the Social Sciences
10:25-11:00	Coffee break
11:00-12:30	SAT and the Analysis of Morality and Controls in Crime Causation
11:00-11:30	The relevance of external and internal controls in young adulthood: Testing assumptions of SAT Dr George Kesseler & Prof Jost Reinecke, University of Bielefeld
11:30-12:00	Exploring possibilities to test the moral conflict hypothesis in SAT using vignette studies: Some persistent challenges Prof. Lieven Pauwels, Ghent University
12:00-12:30	The power of morality and the conditionality of rational choice in crime causation: A fixed-effects analysis of panel data Dr André Ernst, Dr Kathrin Lämmermann, Prof Clemens Kroneberg & Maria Gerth, University of Cologne

12:30-13:25 Lunch

Saturday, 24 March (continued)

13:30-	Day 2, Afternoon Session Chair: Clemens Kroneberg, University of Cologne
13:30-15:00	New Tests of SAT in Non-European Countries (Venezuela, China and Saudi Arabia)
13:30-14:00	Morality, self-control and crime among a sample of Venezuelan adolescents Dr. Juan Antonio Rodríguez, Universidad de Los Andes & Professor Christopher Birkbeck, University of Salford
14:00-14:30	Morality, self-control and crime in a Chinese city Xiaoya Xun, University of Cambridge
14:30-15:00	Morality, self-control and crime: A test of SAT among adolescents in Saudi Arabia Norah Al Ruwaili, Salford University

15:00-15:30 Coffee

15:30- Morality and Controls in SAT: Some Key Theoretical and Methodological Issues

15:30-16:10 Morality and controls in SAT: Some key theoretical and methodological issues
P-O Wikström, University of Cambridge

16:10- Discussants

Prof Michael Gottfredson, University of California Prof Emeritus Anthony Bottoms, University of Cambridge

18.00 Pre-dinner drinks

19:00 Workshop dinner

Sunday,	25	March	1
---------	-----------	-------	---

08:00-08:55	Breakfast
09:00-12:00	Day 3, Morning Session Chair: Prof Helmut Hirtenlehner, Johannes Kepler Universität Linz
09:00-10:00	An SAT Analysis of Activity Fields and Pathways of Change
09:00-09:30	Diverging lives: Changing activity fields and pathways of crime Dr Gabriela Roman, University of Cambridge
09:30-10:00	Discussant George Kessler, University of Bielefeld
10:00-10:30	SAT and the Macro-Micro Problem
10:00-10:30	Institutional anomie, marketized morality, and criminal offending: Explicating cross-level mechanisms with the help of SAT Eva-Maria Gross, University of Bielefeld (& State Office of Criminal Investigation of Lower Saxony)
10:30-11:00	Coffee break
11:00-12:00	SAT and the Analyses of Intimate Partner Violence
11:00-11:30	SAT applied to the context of intimate partner violence: A case vignette study Dr Anna-Kari Sjödin, University of Gothenburgh
11:30-12:00	Explaining intimate partner violence with SAT Jenni Barton-Crosby, University of Cambridge
12:00	Lunch